

Amusements

Orpheum.

There's nothing about the Orpheum this week to bring the enthusiasm to a recital of why the wild swans are wild. It is a bill containing nothing great, but one which has people in looking on as not so far beyond the pale of worth as to say it is a recital at some moment a favorable word.

Maud Lambert and Ernest R. Ball are the leading artists. There is a wholesome air about their turn that in these days of jazz and hokum brings native moments. Miss Lambert is a singer of the caliber exultantly called for her partner's compositions. Sweet of tone and crystal in clarity her interpretations really make one wish for the song days when some of Ernest Ball's earlier hits were first published. Ball himself is funny. That's enough. He just knows how and knows how enough to curtail any overdoing of a light line of comedy.

A quaint little character dropped in one of New York's cabarets recently possibly milk now is not so totally foreign as the suit has it is the woman in "Ella Comes to Town." Jean Adair is everything this part calls for. She makes the sketch, though assisted by John Weber opposite. The manner in which she reads her lines, so daintily fascinating, and the force with which she rises to the various situations classes Miss Adair as one of the two-act's best character women. There is about "When Ella Comes to Town," too, the atmosphere of wholesome fun that makes one sometimes think vaudeville has not gone to the dogs.

In John Church and La Petite Marguerite come two dancers who demand attention. Church is capable and excellent and Marguerite is capable and good to look upon. The man's single effort alone spoke loudly that he was a dancer of the first rank in the Russian style.

Advance reports said Libonati not only was supreme in syncretism but that he had personality. Monday night his execution was flawless, his jazz peppy and his vocal efforts were straight numbers good, but somehow he seemed bothered. Possibly he had a friend in the front row by a partner whose name the xylophonist said was Lloyd, went over enough to warrant a repeat.

Laughs and plenty of 'em are to be found in Ralph Nash and Sam Holmes' double-header. Saturday night, nothing to it but none expects other than a howling time.

Herbert's Loop, Loop and Leap, Cabaret, pigons, roosters and many yells and squawks opened. An animal act displaying patience in training and therefore worth big time. Two girls and a flock of water lions played into and splash around in a "blue glass" of water that drew out the noise made by some of the early leavers.

The program says Fritz Schiff will be at this house next week. Though it will be Miss Schiff's second appearance here this season one needs must welcome the probabilities of Fritz Schiff's "Kiss Me." AL WILSON.

"Twin Beds."

"Twin Beds," Margaret Mayo's delightful comedy, came back to the Lyric once more Monday night with Edna Bolon, delightful little woman who winds one at times of Billie Burke, in the leading role admirably supported by Thomas J. Evans, in the part of the poor, nerve-racked husband, and M. D'Angelo as the temperamental singer, Signor Monti. Virginia Moore, the tenor's wife also covered her part with glory and gave a most creditable reading of a difficult part.

A goodly sized house greeted the initial performance Monday evening and once more rocked with genuine laughter at the almost perfect comedy situations which follow so fast and furiously. Although the laughable farce has been seen here many times before, the play cast leaves little or nothing to be desired and Monday night's audience were as one in agreeing that the play was well worth seeing even one has seen it before and learned to forestall the hilarious situations.

Miss Bolon, in the leading role of Mrs. Hawkins brings to the part a natural rendition of a girlish character whose love of life and early bridegroom to her husband. Mr. Evans is an admirable foil for Miss Bolon, and M. D'Angelo as the Italian tenor, while sometimes displaying a tendency to overact, is admirable. Miss Fairfax runs Miss Bolon a close second in playing honors while other principals in the cast present their parts in excellent fashion. Kathryn Mills as the Irish maid, "Nora," being especially good.

"Twin Beds," which will be repeated Tuesday and Wednesday nights with a pause Wednesday, is well worth seeing even if you may have laughed at the comedy before. H. B. D.

Loew's Lyceum.

A variety of five good acts make the present vaudeville bill at Loew's Lyceum well worth while. While "Waiters Wanted," a farcical sketch, and the "Troy Sisters," dainty comedy and dance for headline honors, the rest of the bill is well up to the Loew standard. Lee Nash is a thoroughly entertaining number of eccentric feats of daring. Harry Brown and Harry Evans, two male comedians, have a lively line of patter and soft shoe dances.

"The Willow Tree," which ran for many months on Broadway when originally presented on the legitimate stage, is even more entertaining in its photoplay adaptation. Viola Dana takes the lead in this film, which is appended to the vaudeville bill.

Moving Pictures

Majestic.

Katherine MacDonald, popularly termed the most beautiful woman on the screen, and whose latest picture, "The Thunderbolt," will be seen at the Majestic theater Tuesday and Wednesday, is in a state of turmoil. Opening her mail recently Miss MacDonald found a $10 bill to which was pinned a note in child's handwriting stating "I love you."

Miss MacDonald offers a liberal reward to anyone giving her a clue as to the person who sent the money and letter.

Strand.

"Two Weeks," Miss Talmadge's latest comedy drama, taken from the play, "At the Barn," by Anthony Wharton, will be shown at the Strand theater all this week.

It is the story of the rise of a chorus girl to stardom. She is insulted by her escort at a country place, flees on a truck and finds herself at the home of three crusty bachelors. She vamps them to a finish and all three fall in love with her. Now what could a poor girl do with three men in love with her?

Max Senetta's "His Last False Step" also is shown.

Princess.

Mystery, love and intrigue in aristocratic London society, and oriental vengeance, are the themes which make "The Illustrious Prince," a photodrama based on the story by E. Phillips Oppenheim and starring George Hays-Jawa, Nipponese star, one of the most sensational and fascinating screen productions ever filmed.

The picture will be shown Wednesday and Thursday at the Princess.

Infantry Regiments
Of First Division
Awarded Fourragere

On March 19 the colors of the four infantry regiments of the First American division, the 16th, 18th, 26th and 25th, were decorated with the Fourragere of France. Gen. Sumner, First division commander, represented the French government in this ceremony. The Fourragere is known as the citation cord of the French army. It is green and red, the colors of the Croix de Guerre and is tipped with a gold tassel. A regiment is given this decoration only after its colors have been twice decorated with the Croix de Guerre with palm. The decoration of the colors with the Fourragere entitles every member of the regiment to wear this decoration on his left shoulder.

Gen. Sumner said in his decoration remarks: "These regiments have been cited for the courageous, gallant and distinguished conduct of the officers and men of the regiments during the operations around Soissons and in the Meuse-Aargonne operations. This honor is extended to the living in memory of the dead and to the glory of the wounded. For all time these regiments will carry this mark won on a field of battle, which is the emblem of a set of universal symbols that, no matter where found, 'breathe the wisdom of the ages and thus these symbols can be found in our own sacred book.'

Members of the 26th infantry, most of whom were engaged in the battles for which the decoration has been awarded, are present in the audience. The other units of the American army, to be so decorated are the 8th and 23d infantry and the 5th and 6th marines of the Second American division.

Woman Will Give
Lecture Series

Mrs. Harriet Tuttle Bartlett, author and lecturer of Los Angeles, Cal., will begin a series of eight free public lectures Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock in the concert hall of the Woman's Building, series that will be of much interest to all those interested in the Bible, archaeology, science or Masonry. Dealing with the mysteries of the past and their illuminating effect when studied in connection with the Bible, the unique fact brought out by Mrs. Bartlett will be the existence of a set of universal symbols that, no matter where found, 'breathe the wisdom of the ages and thus these symbols can be found in our own sacred book.'

Beginning Wednesday night, March 23, and each succeeding night until the 28th, Mrs. Bartlett will lecture on the following subjects: "Our Glorious Destiny," "Our Bible, Its Place," "Bible Symbolism in the Light of Science," "The Message of the Great Pyramid," "The Miracle of Moses and the Exodus," "A Practical Study of the New Psychology," "The Child of the New Race," "The Masters and the Coming Great One."

Post-War Photoplay
Delights Big Crowd

"The Way Back," the big post-war photoplay the Elks are showing to aid the fund for the vocational education of disabled American boys, was given its first showing in the South at the Gaudwin institute Monday night and gave a large audience two hours of unbroken enjoyment.

Miss Claire Whitney, who stars in the film, will be remembered as the leading woman in "The Man Who Stayed at Home" in which she appeared opposite King Baggott. She is one of the most charming and versatile among the younger stars, and in "The Way Back" her emotional ability finds full opportunity for expression.

The story tells in dramatic fashion of the love of two boys for one girl, their idealism and the way they found themselves through the work the government is doing. A baseball game is so strongly pictured that spectators were raised from their seats.

Congress in appropriating money for vocational training failed to provide for American boys who were wounded while serving with the allies. The Elks saw the opening and pledged $10,000 to be expended by the government to take care of them. A part of the money will be raised by "The Way Back" photoplay being shown for charity. It is an admirable photoplay, beautifully photographed.

FIRE DESTROYS OIL TANK.
CAMDEN, March 21.—Fire destroyed a 50,000-barrel tank at the plant of the Vacuum Oil company near Paulsboro. An explosion set fire to the 50,000 barrels of oil in the tank. It burned all night but by hard work firemen prevented it from spreading to adjoining property. The plant is the largest in the world. The loss is $200,000.

The God of the Living

God is Not the God of the Dead — But of the Living

YOU do not have to die in order to enter heaven. You may enter now, here, in this life. The door is open and you are a welcome guest. Jesus Christ has opened that door for you, and the God of The Living is the host who bids you enter.

Christ came not to teach you how to die. He came to teach you to live. His own words were: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." The abundant life may be yours if you will have it.

In sixty churches in Memphis God's ministers will tell you how your life may be made deeper, richer and fuller.
